THE PROBLEM SOLVER

HOW  WORKS

WD-40's success is based on one simple property. It has a very high surface attraction to metal. It is wetter than water. It completely wets all metal surfaces even in the presence of moisture, coating even microscopic irregularities. In this way it can spread its active ingredient under moisture, through rust and corrosion and into the hardest to reach areas. These ingredients form a protective, moisture-proof and electrically non conductive barrier on the metal.
