THE PROBLEM SOLVER

HOW

WORKS

WD-40's success is based on one simple property. It has a very high surface attraction to metal. It is wetter than water. It completely wets all metal surfaces even in the presence of moisture, coating even microscopic irregularities. In this way it can spread its active ingredient under moisture, through rust and corrosion and into the hardest to reach areas. These ingredients form a protective, moisture-proof and electrical-ly non conductive barrier on the metal.

OKO is installed through the valve stem and remains liquid inside the tyre. When a puncture occurs, the escaping air pressure forces the liquid into the puncture. Interlocking fibres, binders and other sealing agents inside OKO intertwine and clot to create a permanent flexible and long lasting plug.
